Flexible Pacing When Capacity Changes

Across

1. A quieter one may rescue a conversation.

4. What a bad morning cannot always reveal.

5. Brief records that help reveal delayed patterns.

8. Someone worth making room for in a busy week.

9. How an activity plan may become as needs change.

12. What a thoughtful pacing plan must leave room for.

14. Several reasonable paths when plans must change.

16. A decision made without knowing tomorrow's ending.

17. Gardening from a chair rather than standing.

19. Transport arranged to spare an extra walk.

20. A possibility to weigh, not a prediction of failure.

22. The unwell feeling in 'post-exertional ___'.

24. Able to change course without calling it failure.

Down

2. Physical or mental effort with possible later effects.

3. Herbs, raised planters and a chair with a view.

6. The day-after drain that can follow a simple task.

7. The café quality that lets a conversation breathe.

10. Experiences that can change from day to day.

11. Consider this after activity, not just during it.

13. A fresh clinical look when delayed worsening repeats.

15. When a delayed response finally shows up.

18. What clinicians need before explaining a new pattern.

21. Accepting this with watering doesn't surrender the garden.

23. A useful first move before changing a care plan.
